Mission Statement

Each man, woman and child in Parker, Arizona, and the surrounding communities, will have access to innovative library services, delivered in an efficient and effective manner, that will:

- Help all residents gain an understanding of their own cultural heritage and the cultural heritage of others
- Provide the information services needed to answer their questions
- Help students of any age who are home-schooled, or, who are enrolled in a formal program of education pursue their educational goals
- Provide the materials, programs and services needed to meet their educational needs
- Provide job seekers the tools to improve their skills

LIBRARY BILL OF RIGHTS

The American Library Association affirms that all libraries are forums for information and ideas, and that the following basic policies should guide their services.

1. Books and other library resources should be provided for the interest, information, and enlightenment of all people of the community the library serves. Materials should not be excluded because of the origin, background, or views of those contributing to their creation.
2. Libraries should provide materials and information presenting all points of view on current and historical issues. Materials should not be proscribed or removed because of partisan or doctrinal disapproval.
3. Libraries should challenge censorship in the fulfillment of their responsibilities to provide information and enlightenment.
4. Libraries should cooperate with all persons and groups concerned with resisting abridgment of free expression and free access to ideas.
5. A person's right to use a library should not be denied or abridged because of origin, age, background, or views.
6. Libraries which make exhibit spaces and meeting rooms available to the public they serve should make such facilities available on an equitable basis, regardless of the beliefs or affiliations of individuals or groups requesting their use.
7. All people, regardless of origin, age, background, or views, possess a right to privacy and confidentiality in their library use. Libraries should advocate for, educate about, and protect people's privacy, safeguarding all library use data, including personally identifiable information.

Adopted June 19, 1939, by the ALA Council; amended October 14, 1944; June 18, 1948; February 2, 1961; June 27, 1967; January 23, 1980; inclusion of "age" reaffirmed January 23, 1996.

THE FREEDOM TO READ

The freedom to read is essential to our democracy. It is continuously under attack. Private groups and public authorities in various parts of the country are working to remove books from sale, to censor textbooks, to label “controversial” books, to distribute lists of “objectionable” books of authors, and to purge libraries. These actions apparently rise from a view that our national tradition of free expression is no longer valid; that censorship and suppression are needed to avoid the subversion of politics and corruption of morals. We, as citizens devoted to the use of books and as librarians and publishers responsible for disseminating them, wish to assert the public interest in the preservation of the freedom to read.

We are deeply concerned about these attempts at suppression. Most such attempts rest on a denial of the fundamental premise of democracy: That the ordinary citizen, by exercising his critical judgment, will accept the good and reject the bad. The censors, public and private, assume that they should determine what is good and what is bad for their fellow citizens.

We trust Americans to recognize propaganda, and to reject it. We do not believe they need the help of censors to assist them in this task. We do not believe they are prepared to sacrifice their heritage of a free press in order to be “protected” against what others think may be bad for them. We believe they still favor free enterprise in ideas and expression.

We are aware, of course, that books are not alone in being subjected to efforts at suppression. We are aware that these efforts are related to a larger pattern of pressures being brought against education, the press, films, radio, and television. The problem is not only one of actual censorship. The shadow of fear cast by these pressures leads, we suspect, to an even larger voluntary curtailment of expression by those who seek to avoid controversy.

Such pressure toward conformity is perhaps natural to a time of uneasy change and pervading fear. Especially when so many of our apprehensions are directed against an ideology, the expression of a dissident idea becomes a thing feared in it, and we tend to move against a hostile deed, with suppression.

And yet suppression is never more dangerous than in such a time of social tension. Freedom has given the United States the elasticity to endure strain. Freedom keeps open the path of novel and creative solutions, and enables change to come by choice. Every silencing of a heresy, every enforcement of an orthodoxy, diminishes the toughness and resilience of our society and leaves it the less able to deal with stress.

Now as always in our history, books are among our greatest instruments of freedom. They are almost the only means for making generally available ideas or manners of expression that can initially command only a small audience. They are the natural medium for the new ideas and the untried voice from which come the original contributions to social growth. They are essential to the extended discussion which serious thought requires, and to the accumulation of knowledge and ideas into organized collections.

We believe that free communication is essential to the preservation of a free society and a creative culture. We believe that these pressures toward conformity present the danger of limiting the range and variety of inquiry and expression on which our democracy and our culture depend. We believe that every American community must jealously guard the freedom to publish and to circulate, in order to preserve its own freedom to read. We believe that publishers and librarians have a profound responsibility to give validity to that freedom to read by making it possible for the readers to choose freely from a variety of offerings.

The freedom to read is guaranteed by the Constitution. Those with faith in the free men will stand firm on these constitutional guarantees of essential rights and will exercise the responsibilities that accompany these rights.

We therefore affirm these propositions:

1. It is in the public interest for publishers and librarians to make available the widest diversity of views and expression, including those which are unorthodox or unpopular with the majority.

Creative thought is by definition new, and what is new is different. The bearer of every new thought is a rebel until his idea is refined and tested. Totalitarian systems attempt to maintain themselves in power by the ruthless suppression of any concept which challenges the established orthodoxy. The power of a democratic system to adapt to change is vastly strengthened by the freedom of its citizens to choose widely from among conflicting opinions offered freely to them. To stifle every nonconformist idea at birth would mark the end of the democratic process. Furthermore, only through the constant activity of weighing and selecting can the democratic mind attain the strength demanded by times like these. We need to know not only what we believe but why we believe it.

2. Publishers, librarians and booksellers do not need to endorse every idea or presentation contained in the books they make available. It would conflict with the public interest for them to establish their own political, moral or aesthetic views as a standard for determining what books should be published or circulated.

Publishers and librarians serve the educational process by helping to make available knowledge and ideas required for the growth of the mind and the increase of learning. They do not foster education by imposing as mentors the patterns of their own thought. The people should have the freedom to read and consider a broader range of ideas than those that may be held by any single librarian or publisher or government or church. It is wrong that what one man can read should be confined to what another thinks is proper.

3. It is contrary to the public interest for publishers or librarians to determine the acceptability of a book on the basis of the personal history or political affiliations of the author.

A book should be judged as a book. No art or literature can flourish if it is to be measured by the political views or private lives of its creators. No society of free men can flourish which draws up lists of writers to whom it will not listen, whatever they may have to say.

4. There is no place in our society for efforts to coerce the taste of others, to confine adults to the reading matter deemed suitable for adolescents, or to inhibit the efforts of writers to achieve artistic expression.

To some, much of modern literature is shocking. But is not much of life itself shocking? We cut off literature at the source if we prevent writers from dealing with the stuff of life. Parents and teachers have a responsibility to prepare the young to meet the diversity of experiences in life to which they will be exposed, as they have a responsibility to help them learn to think critically for themselves. These are affirmative responsibilities, not to be discharged simply by preventing them from reading works for which they are not yet prepared. In these matters taste differs, taste cannot be legislated; nor can machinery be devised which will suit the demands of one group without limiting the freedom of others.

5. It is not in the public interest to force a reader to accept with any book the prejudice of a label characterizing the book or author as subversive or dangerous.

The idea of labeling presupposes the existence of individuals or groups with wisdom to determine by authority what is good or bad for the citizen. It presupposes that each individual must be directed in making up his mind about the ideas he examines. But Americans do not need others to do their thinking for them.

6. It is the responsibility of publishers and librarians, as guardians of the people's freedom to read, to contest encroachments upon that freedom by individuals or groups seeking to impose their own standards or tastes upon the community at large.

It is inevitable in the give and take of the democratic process that the political, the moral, or the aesthetic concepts of an individual or group will occasionally collide with those of another individual or group. In a free society each individual is free to determine for himself what he wishes to read and each group is free to determine what it will recommend to its freely associated members. But no group has the right to take the law into its own hands, and to impose its own concept of politics or morality upon other members of a democratic society. Freedom is no freedom if it is accorded only the accepted and the inoffensive.

7. It is the responsibility of publishers and librarians to give full meaning to the freedom to read by providing books that enrich the quality and diversity of thought and expression. By the exercise of this affirmative responsibility, bookmen can demonstrate that the answer to a bad book is a good one, the answer to a bad idea is a good one.

The freedom to read is of little consequence when expended on the trivial; it is frustrated when the reader cannot obtain matter fit for his purpose. What is needed is not only the absence of restraint, but the positive provision of opportunity for the people to read the best that has been thought and said. Books are the major channel by which the intellectual inheritance is handed down, and the principal means of its testing and growth. The defense of their freedom and integrity, and the enlargement of their service to society, require of all bookmen the utmost of their faculties, and deserve of all citizens the fullest of their support.

We state these propositions neither lightly nor as easy generalizations. We here stake out a lofty claim for the value of books. We do so because we believe that they are good, possess of enormous variety and usefulness, worthy of cherishing and keeping free. We realize that the application of these propositions may mean the dissemination of ideas and manners or expressions that are repugnant to many persons. We do not state these propositions in the comfortable belief that what people read is unimportant. We believe rather that what people read is deeply important; that ideas can be dangerous; but that the suppression of ideas is fatal to a democratic society. Freedom itself is a dangerous way of life, but it is ours.

This statement was originally issued in May of 1953 by the Westchester Conference of the American Library Association and the American Book Publishers Council, which in 1970 consolidated with the American Educational Publishers Institute to become the Association of American Publishers.

UNATTENDED CHILDREN AND/OR DISRUPTIVE BEHAVIOR

POLICY STATEMENT: Parents may not leave children under age eight unattended in the library. Parents are responsible for their children's behavior while in the library.

1. Children left unattended are often frightened and crying and should be comforted by staff.
2. If it is determined that a child is lost or left unattended, a staff member will bring the child to the circulation desk and try to identify and locate the parents or responsible adults:
 - a. Walk around the Library with the child looking for a parent.
 - b. When the parent is located, explain firmly the Library's policy on unattended children.
 - c. The last resort, if the parent is not found in the building, the staff member should call the police. If police are called we need to write up a report.
 - d. Under no circumstances shall a staff member take the child out of the building.

DISRUPTIVE BEHAVIOR

1. ATTENDED CHILDREN (with parent present)
 - a. Ask the child where his or her parent or guardian is, find the parent or guardian, inform them of the child's behavior.
 - b. If the parents refuse or are unable to control the child, the family will be asked to leave, Law Enforcement may be called. A report needs to be written.

2. UNATTENDED/DISRUPTIVE CHILDREN

If a child is unattended and is behaving in a disruptive manner:

- a. Disruptive children will be given:
 1. Three verbal warnings.
 2. Then one written warning with a call to the parent, guardian, or caregiver with one day suspension from the library.
 3. If they are written up again and the child will be asked to leave for a 30 day minimum suspension and a phone call to the parent, guardian, or caregiver.
- b. When the parent, guardian, or caregiver is contacted he/she will be told that the child was being disruptive, then remind them of the Library's policy.

Parental Responsibility Policy

Upon acceptance of a library card, this policy becomes binding upon parent, guardian, and/or caregiver to abide by all library policies pertaining to minor children and young adults' use of library facility and library materials.

1. When application is made to obtain a minor child a library card, the purpose of the parent, guardian/caregiver presence is to provide notification that the library is not responsible for monitoring materials checked out by children/young adults and that the parent, guardian, or caregiver is financially responsible for lost, damaged, or returned late library materials.
2. It is the prerogative of the parent or guardians to develop, interpret, and apply their code of acceptable conduct in their own families.
3. Parents are encouraged to come with their children to the library to guide them in the selection of books, use of the Internet, and other library materials. Guidance in the selection and use of the library materials is the responsibility of the parent, guardian, or caregiver, not the library staff.
4. The library will not arbitrarily limit children to the use of books in the children's section of the library, as they may not meet the needs and interests of all children. Many parents encourage their children to use items from the adult collection, which may include items that other parents would deem to be adult in nature. The library staff is not responsible for determining whether materials used by minors are "age appropriate".
5. Responsibility for the control and safety of children in the library rests with the parent, guardian, or caregiver.

B. The library will attempt to represent all approaches to public issues of a controversial nature. The library does not promulgate particular beliefs or views, nor is the selection of any given book equivalent of an endorsement of the author's viewpoint. If a scarcity of information in a particular subject area exists, material in that area may be selected, even though it does not meet the usually applied standards.

ILL RESOURCE ACCESS AND ATTAINMENT POLICY

The Parker Public Library (PPL) is committed to working with its patrons to find the information they need and want and to attain that material.

- (1) PPL will be an active member of OCLC's World Share in order to facilitate the sharing of resources among libraries.
- (2) PPL will work with patrons, at no charge, to locate materials.
- (3) PPL will provide specific information on attaining material. PPL will offer several options to attain material including but not limited to: patrons purchasing materials from Sieberts Corner that are for sale, if 2 or more patrons request a book the library will put it on their list to purchase it, or the interlibrary loan option #4.

- (4) When materials can only be attained by interlibrary loan, PPL will secure the materials for the patron if the patron agrees to pay $3.00 for part of the postage cost and if the material becomes Overdue it is $1.00 a day until returned. This lending policy is consistent with Arizona State Library, Archives and Public Records guidelines governing library grants eligibility.
- (5) PPL will loan to and borrow materials from OCLC World Share members.

YOUNG ADULT SERVICES/MATERIAL SELECTION POLICY

I. SELECTION OBJECTIVES

The Library recognizes the uniqueness of the young adult and attempts to provide for the needs and interests of the age thirteen to seventeen year old patrons through the collection of library materials geared toward the informational, educational, and recreational needs of the young adult.

II. RESPONSIBILITY FOR SELECTION

The responsibility for selection lies with the professional staff of the library. Other staff members as well as members of the general public may make recommendations for consideration. The ultimate responsibility for book selection rests with the Library Manager who operates within the framework of policies determined by the Library Advisory Board.

As far as the Library Manager deems practical, general selection principles will apply in choosing young adult print and non-print materials. Criteria include the importance and popular appeal of the subject matter, the needs of the collection and the price of the material.

Personal growth, career aspirations, social development, recreational reading, fads and hobbies are among the types of informational needs the library will attempt to meet through hardback and paperback books, periodicals and other media selected for young adults. The library's budget and space limitations will be major factors in determining the size and scope to the young adult collection. Young adult fiction as well as non-fiction is shelved in a special area located within the library.

The responsibility for encouraging reading habits among young adults rests with their parents or legal guardians. Materials in the adult collection and in reference will be open to all patrons. The adult collection will not be restricted by the possibility that young adults may obtain materials their parents consider inappropriate.

No separate reference collection is maintained for young adults.

III. SERVICE OBJECTIVES

The library will attempt to provide some programming directed primarily to the young adults and will encourage attendance at general audience programs deemed to be of interest to young adults.

The library staff will demonstrate the use of library reference tools, instruct in the use of the on-line catalog and provide assistance in locating materials on the library shelves as requested; however, the staff will not engage in actual research or homework assignments which are the responsibility of the young adult patron requesting assistance. The library will not attempt to provide textbooks used in school curriculum either in the collection or through interlibrary loan, although a book would not necessarily be excluded from the collection simply because it is a textbook.

CHILDREN'S SERVICES/MATERIALS SELECTION POLICY

It is the desire of the Parker Public Library to provide children and the pre-school through early teen years a collection that can satisfy their informational, cultural and recreational reading needs. Primary emphasis is placed on the selection of a wide variety of printed materials to help stimulate the child's intellectual, emotional and creative abilities and to help satisfy the child's natural curiosity about the world and his or her relationship to it. The library will add non-print materials for children as the budget allows.

I. RESPONSIBILITY FOR SELECTION

The responsibility for selection lies with the profession staff of the library. Other staff members, as well as members of the general public, may make recommendations for consideration. The ultimate responsibility for book selection rests with the Library Manager who operates within the framework of policies determined by the Library Advisory Board.

II. SELECTION RESPONSIBILITY CRITERIA

Selection decisions may be based upon the following criteria

1. Literary and artistic worth
2. Suitability of content and vocabulary to the age of the readers
3. Contribution of the material to the balance of the total collection
4. Emphasis on positive attitudes
5. Provision of enjoyment thereby fostering an interest in reading
6. Positive reviews in recognized reviewing journals or inclusion in authorities lists of best books for children.

The children's collection includes print and non-print materials to meet the general demands of the majority of children as well as books with special qualities, which make them valuable to children with special needs, talents, problems or interests.

School curriculum demands may be considered in selection; however, it is not the intention of the library to replicate or attempt to substitute for the school library.

Books in a series will be judged individually for merit and will be added only as they fill a particular need.

Books on human development and sex are carefully selected as to scientific accuracy and simplicity and dignity of presentation.

Books which are recognized as children's classics and of considerable literary material are included in the collection even though they may contain a word or phrase that is unacceptable to some members of the community.

Current books which are well written and which authentically and meaningfully portray a period, incident, or way of life may be purchased despite the occasional use of an unacceptable term, provided the total impact of the books meets the standards set forth in this policy.

The responsibility for the reading of children rests with their parents or legal guardians. Materials in the adult collection will not be restricted by the possibility that children may obtain materials their parents consider inappropriate.

Materials chosen especially for children will be shelved under the designation J for juvenile books.

It is the intention of the library to stimulate children's interest in reading through programs such as the summer reading program and story hours. The library staff cooperates with area pre-schools, day care centers and the Parks and Recreation Department of the Town of Parker to further the objective of fostering a love of books and reading among children.

REFERENCE POLICY

The library recognizes the provision of reference service to its patrons as one of its chief functions. Because of the vast scope and specialized nature of reference materials the library staff realizes the impossibility of having the best and/or most recent information on every conceivable topic immediately available on the local level. For this reason it will be the goal of the library staff to:

1. Answer the question from available sources or
2. Refer the patron to a more appropriate resource to obtain the desired information or
3. Initiate appropriate interlibrary loan procedures to obtain needed material or
4. Refer the question to the State Library or other appropriate information center for further investigation.

While it is the desire of the library staff to provide patrons with the requested information, there are limits, which must be imposed.

- A. Patrons with legal questions will be directed to the online Arizona Revised Statutes or other books on law that the library may have in its collection or web sites. In no instance will a librarian or other staff member attempt to interpret the state laws for a patron. The law materials acquired by the library will generally be those suitable for a layman. Patrons with complicated law-related questions will be referred to a law library or urged to seek legal counsel.
- B. Patrons with medically related questions will be directed to one of the standard medical reference books or to the general layman's medical collection the library holds or online websites. The library staff will not interpret material information for the patrons.
- C. Patrons with questions relating to appraisal of value of an object or piece of property will be directed to any relevant materials the library might hold on the subject or online websites. In no way will the library staff attempt to appraise any such object or offer opinions concerning possible value.
- D. The library's role in handling genealogy or heraldry questions will be that of directing the patron to the appropriate materials in the library's collection or online websites. Patrons will be referred to another agency where more materials on this subject are known to exist and where specialized assistance is available. The library will do interlibrary loan for genealogy materials on a limited basis.

Library staff will make efforts to obtain requested telephone numbers to agencies such as governmental organizations, chambers of commerce or associations, but will expect the actual contact by telephone to be made by the patron asking for the information. Library telephone will not be available for use by the public. Telephone patron requests are welcomed; however, when the library staff determines that the quantity of information requested is sufficient to warrant it, the staff member may ask the patron to come into the library to examine the material held on the subject. The staff will not read long passages from various sources, nor is it their place to synthesize or interpret information for the patron.

Because the library has a limited number of telephone lines, under most circumstances the caller will be asked to give a name and telephone number where he or she can be reached with the answer to the question.

It will be the duty of the library staff member handling reference requests to guide the patron in the use of reference tools and in the location of material on a given topic. It is not the responsibility of library staff to conduct research for patrons or to interpret data.

The library staff wants to assist the patrons in finding exactly the right information needed. For this reason it is often necessary to ask questions of the patron to clarify the problem and determine an appropriate search strategy. This is not done to discourage the patron or to invade the privacy of the person with an inquiry. It is merely intended to provide the best possible answer in the shortest length of time. The staff considers no questions to be too small or insignificant. We want to serve you if we can.

WEEDING POLICY

In accordance with space and efficiency requirements of the facility and recognized standards for weeding library materials, the following guidelines will be used for permanent removal of volumes from the library's cataloged collection:

1. Non-repairable damage to the book
2. The book is outdated or it has not circulated in over two years, excluding works that are recognized as classics
3. There are more copies of the book than demand warrants
4. The book needs rebinding and cost exceeds the book's value to the collection

Removal of materials under this policy will only concern items that are old, worn, or without demand; in addition, no items are removed under this policy as a result of content.

The Library Manager will have a final decision concerning removal or retention of materials under this policy.

GIFT POLICY

Parker Public Library actively solicits gifts of print materials; non-print materials and other donations to assist in the enrichment of the library's collection and the provision of needed equipment. Gifts will be accepted on the following conditions:

- A. That the librarian has the authority to make whatever dispositions of the gift as he/she deems advisable.
- B. That no restrictions as to placement or use are made by the donor
- C. That the library will accept no materials for deposit that are not outright gifts

A bookplate will be placed in a donated volume to indicate the donor and/or person being recognized by the gift upon the donor's request, once the librarian has approved the volume for addition to the collection.

No material of any kind will be placed in the library without permission from the librarian.

Gifts such as real property and/or stock will be accepted if conditions attached thereto are acceptable to the Library Advisory Board and the Town Council.

The Internal Revenue Service considers materials donated to the library tax deductible. The library regrets that it cannot appraise gifts but will upon request provide the donor with a statement describing the gift.

The participation of the public through donations is an important enhancement of the well being of the Parker Public Library.

TELEPHONE USE POLICY

The telephones located in the public library are for library business, receipt of reference questions for the public and for convenience to the patron in gaining information about library programs and services. They are not to be used by patrons for conducting personal business or for social calls. Library phones can be used for children to call parents or adults to call for rides. (Library staff will determine allowable calls).

Should an emergency situation arise, (the definition of such an emergency to be defined by library staff and not the patrons) the staff may permit a phone call to be made on a telephone at the front desk, with the call dialed by a staff member. A desire to save a toll-charge on a telephone call will not be considered an emergency.

While it is true that taxpayers do fund the services of the Library, as they do all City services, no single taxpayer has the right to expect special treatment or services not afforded to others. Allowing patrons access to the library's telephones would undermine the purposes for acquiring the telephone service. Patrons would soon find that their legitimate attempts to contact the library were hindered by those patrons wishing to use the telephones for personal business. It is for that reason that the Library Advisory Board has approved the telephone use policy.

EQUIPMENT USE POLICY

The Parker Public Library allows access to several computers and a typewriter for the convenience of our patrons; however, the staff of the library has priority on all equipment.

As Town of Parker property, all additional equipment will be loaned only to Town Departments, or individuals at the discretion of the Library Staff. (With appropriate paperwork)

The policy is designed to protect audio-visual and other equipment so that it will be available for its intended function of enhancing programs to the library patrons and to help staff perform their assigned duties. It is to ensure that the equipment will be used in the manner it was originally intended at its purchase that the Library Advisory Board is adopting this policy.
