MISSION STATEMENT

Each man, woman and child in Parker, Arizona, and the surrounding communities will have access to innovative library services, delivered in an efficient and effective manner, that will:

- Help all residents gain an understanding of their own cultural heritage and the cultural heritage of others;
- Provide the information services needed to answer their questions;
- Help students of any age who are home-schooled, or, who are enrolled in a formal program of education pursue their educational goals;
- Provide the materials, programs and services needed to meet their educational needs.

LIBRARY BILL OF RIGHTS

The American Library Association affirms that all libraries are forums for information and ideas, and that the following basic policies should guide their services.

1. Books and other library resources should be provided for the interest, information, and enlightenment of all people of the community the library serves. Materials should not be excluded because of the origin, background, or views of those contributing to their creation.
2. Libraries should provide materials and information presenting all points of view on current and historical issues. Materials should not be proscribed or removed because of partisan or doctrinal disapproval.
3. Libraries should challenge censorship in the fulfillment of their responsibilities to provide information and enlightenment.
4. Libraries should cooperate with all persons and groups concerned with resisting abridgment of free expression and free access to ideas.
5. A person's right to use a library should not be denied or abridged because of origin, age, background, or views.
6. Libraries which make exhibit spaces and meeting rooms available to the public they serve should make such facilities available on an equitable basis, regardless of the beliefs or affiliations of individuals or groups requesting their use.

Adopted June 18, 1948

Amended February 2, 1967 and January 23, 1980

By the ALA Council

THE FREEDOM TO READ

The freedom to read is essential to our democracy. It is continuously under attack. Private groups and public authorities in various parts of the country are working to remove books from sale, to censor textbooks, to label “controversial” books, to distribute lists of “objectionable” book of authors, and to purge libraries. These actions apparently rise from a view that our national tradition of free expression is no longer valid; that censorship and suppression are needed to avoid the subversion of politics and corruption of morals. We, as citizens devoted to the use of books and as librarians and publishers responsible for disseminating them, wish to assert the public interest in the preservation of the freedom to read.

We are deeply concerned about these attempts at suppression. Most such attempts rest on a denial of the fundamental premise of democracy: That the ordinary citizen, by exercising his critical judgment, will accept the good and reject the bad. The censors, public and private, assume that they should determine what is good and what is bad for their fellow citizens.

We trust Americans to recognize propaganda, and to reject it. We do not believe they need the help of censors to assist them in this task. We do not believe they are prepared to sacrifice their heritage of a free press in order to be “protected” against what others think may be bad for them. We believe they still favor free enterprise in ideas and expression.

We are aware, of course, that books are not alone in being subjected to efforts at suppression. We are aware that these efforts are related to a larger pattern of pressures being brought against education, the press, films, radio, and television. The problem is not only one of actual censorship. The shadow of fear cast by these pressures leads, we suspect, to an even larger voluntary curtailment of expression by those who seek to avoid controversy.

Such pressure toward conformity is perhaps natural to a time of uneasy change and pervading fear. Especially when so many of our apprehensions are directed against an ideology, the expression of a dissident idea becomes a thing feared in it, and we tend to move against a hostile deed, with suppression.

And yet suppression is never more dangerous than in such a time of social tension. Freedom has given the United States the elasticity to endure strain. Freedom keeps open the path of novel and creative solutions, and enables change to come by choice. Every silencing of a heresy, every enforcement of an orthodoxy, diminishes the toughness and resilience of our society and leaves it the less able to deal with stress.

Now as always in our history, books are among our greatest instruments of freedom. They are almost the only means for making generally available ideas or manners of expression that can initially command only a small audience. They are the natural medium for the new ideas and the untried voice from which come the original contributions to a social growth. They are essential to the extended discussion which serious thought requires, and to the accumulation of knowledge and ideas into organized collections.

We believe that free communication is essential to the preservation of a free society and a creative culture. We believe that these pressures toward conformity present the danger of limiting the range and variety of inquiry and expression on which our democracy and our culture depend. We believe that every American community must jealously guard the freedom to publish and to circulate, in order to preserve its own freedom to read. We believe that publishers and librarians have a profound responsibility to give validity to that freedom to read by making it possible for the readers to choose freely from a variety of offerings.

The freedom to read is guaranteed by the Constitution. Those with faith in the free men will stand firm on these constitutional guarantees of essential rights and will exercise the responsibilities that accompany these rights.

We therefore affirm these propositions:

1. It is in the public interest for publishers and librarians to make available the widest diversity of views and expression, including those which are unorthodox or unpopular with the majority.

Creative thought is by definition new, and what is new is different. The bearer of every new thought is a rebel until his idea is refined and tested. Totalitarian systems attempt to maintain themselves in power by the ruthless suppression of any concept which challenges the established orthodoxy. The power of a democratic system to adapt to change is vastly strengthened by the freedom of its citizens to choose widely from among conflicting opinions offered freely to them. To stifle every nonconformist idea at birth would mark the end of the democratic process. Furthermore, only through the constant activity of weighing and selecting can the democratic mind attain the strength demanded by times like these. We need to know not only what we believe but why we believe it.

2. Publishers, librarians and booksellers do not need to endorse every idea or presentation contained in the books they make available. It would conflict with the public interest for them to establish their own political, moral or aesthetic views as a standard for determining what books should be published or circulated.

Publishers and librarians serve the educational process by helping to make available knowledge and ideas required for the growth of the mind and the increase of learning. They do not foster education by imposing as mentors the patterns of their own thought. The people should have the freedom to read and consider a broader range of ideas than those that may be held by any single librarian or publisher or government or church. It is wrong that what one man can read should be confined to what another thinks is proper.

3. It is contrary to the public interest for publishers or librarians to determine the acceptability of a book on the basis of the personal history or political affiliations of the author.

A book should be judged as a book. No art or literature can flourish if it is to be measured by the political views or private lives of its creators. No society of free men can flourish which draws up lists of writers to whom it will not listen, whatever they may have to say.

4. There is no place in our society for efforts to coerce the taste of others, to confine adults to the reading matter deemed suitable for adolescents, or to inhibit the efforts of writers to achieve artistic expression.

To some, much of modern literature is shocking. But is not much of life itself shocking? We cut off literature at the source if we prevent writers from dealing with the stuff of life. Parents and teachers have a responsibility to prepare the young to meet the diversity of experiences in life to which they will be exposed, as they have a responsibility to help them learn to think critically for themselves. These are affirmative responsibilities, not to be discharged simply by preventing them from reading works for which they are not yet prepared. In these matters taste differs, taste cannot be legislated; nor can machinery be devised which will suit the demands of one group without limiting the freedom of others.

5. It is not in the public interest to force a reader to accept with any book the prejudgment of a label characterizing the book or author as subversive or dangerous.

The idea of labeling presupposes the existence of individuals or groups with wisdom to determine by authority what is good or bad for the citizen. It presupposes that each individual must be directed in making up his mind about the ideas he examines. But Americans do not need others to do their thinking for them.

6. It is the responsibility of publishers and librarians, as guardians of the people's freedom to read, to contest encroachments upon that freedom by individuals or groups seeking to impose their own standards or tastes upon the community at large.

It is inevitable in the give and take of the democratic process that the political, the moral, or the aesthetic concepts of an individual or group will occasionally collide with those of another individual or group. In a free society each individual is free to determine for himself what he wishes to read and each group is free to determine what it will recommend to its freely associated members. But no group has the right to take the law into its own hands, and to impose its own concept of politics or morality upon other members of a democratic society. Freedom is no freedom if it is accorded only the accepted and the inoffensive.

7. It is the responsibility of publishers and librarians to give full meaning to the freedom to read by providing books that enrich the quality and diversity of thought and expression. By the exercise of this affirmative responsibility, bookmen can demonstrate that the answer to a bad book is a good one, the answer to a bad idea is a good one.

The freedom to read is of little consequence when expended on the trivial; it is frustrated when the reader cannot obtain matter fit for his purpose. What is needed is not only the absence of restraint, but the positive provision of opportunity for the people to read the best that has been thought and said. Books are the major channel by which the intellectual inheritance is handed down, and the principal means of its testing and growth. The defense of their freedom and integrity, and the enlargement of their service to society, require of all bookmen the utmost of their faculties, and deserve of all citizens the fullest of their support.

We state these propositions neither lightly nor as easy generalizations. We here stake out a lofty claim for the value of books. We do so because we believe that they are good, possess of enormous variety and usefulness, worthy of cherishing and keeping free. We realize that the application of these propositions may mean the dissemination of ideas and manners or expression that are repugnant to many persons. We do not state these propositions in the comfortable belief that what people read is unimportant. We believe rather that what people read is deeply important; that ideas can be dangerous; but that the suppression of ideas is fatal to a democratic society. Freedom itself is a dangerous way of life, but it is ours.

The library does not promulgate particular beliefs or views, nor is the selection of any given book equivalent of an endorsement of the author's viewpoint. If a scarcity of information in a particular subject area exists, material in that area may be selected, even though it does not meet the usually applied standards.

The library will review selection decisions regarding specific materials upon the completion of the books selection inquiry form by the individual or group raising the objection.   - b. Books marked "DO NOT CIRCULATE" which are restricted to library use because of the specialized nature or value of the material.
  - c. Any microfilm materials.
  - d. Any book designated as "ON RESERVE".
8. Circulating materials held by the library, but not immediately available, may be reserved by the patron and a hold will be placed on the item. # YOUNG ADULT SERVICES/MATERIAL SELECTION POLICY

I. SELECTION OBJECTIVES

The Library recognizes the uniqueness of the young adult and attempts to provide for the needs and interests of the age thirteen to seventeen year old patrons through the collection of library materials geared toward the informational, educational, and recreational needs of the young adult.

II. RESPONSIBILITY FOR SELECTION

The responsibility for selection lies with the professional staff of the library. Other staff members as well as members of the general public may make recommendations for consideration. The ultimate responsibility for book selection rests with the Library Director who operates within the framework of policies determined by the Library Advisory Board.

In so far as the Library Director deems practical, general selection principles will apply in choosing young adult print and non-print materials. Criteria include the importance and popular appeal of the subject matter, the needs of the collection and the price of the material.

Personal growth, career aspirations, social development, recreational reading, fads and hobbies are among the types of informational needs the library will attempt to meet through hardback and paperback books, periodicals and other media selected for young adults. The library's budget and space limitations will be major factors in determining the size and scope to the young adult collection. Young adult fiction as well as non-fiction is shelved in a special area located within the library.

The responsibility for encouraging reading habits among young adults rests with their parents or legal guardians. Materials in the adult collection and in reference will be open to all patrons. The adult collection will not be restricted by the possibility that young adults may obtain materials their parents consider inappropriate.

No separate reference collection is maintained for young adults.

III. SERVICE OBJECTIVES

The library will attempt to provide some programming directed primarily to the young adults and will encourage attendance at general audience programs deemed to be of interest to young adults.

The library staff will demonstrate the use of library reference tools, instruct in the use of the on-line catalog and provide assistance in locating materials on the library shelves as requested; however, the staff will not engage in actual research or homework assignments which are the responsibility of the young adult patron requesting assistance. The library will not attempt to provide textbooks used in school curriculum either in the collection or through interlibrary loan, although a book would not necessarily be excluded from the collection simply because it is a textbook.

The library recognizes the talents and resourcefulness of young adults. For this reason the library encourages teenagers to volunteer for work assignments in the library, and to submit book requests.

CHILDREN'S SERVICES/MATERIALS SELECTION POLICY

It is the desire of the Parker Public Library to provide children and the pre-school through early teen years a collection that can satisfy their informational, cultural and recreational reading needs. Primary emphasis is placed on the selection of a wide variety of print materials to help stimulate the child's intellectual, emotional and creative abilities and to help satisfy the child's natural curiosity about the world and his or her relationship to it. The library will add non-print materials for children as the budget allows.

I. RESPONSIBILITY FOR SELECTION

The responsibility for selection lies with the professional staff of the library. Other staff members, as well as members of the general public, may make recommendations for consideration. The ultimate responsibility for book selection rests with the Library Director who operates within the framework of policies determined by the Library Advisory Board.

II. SELECTION RESPONSIBILITY CRITERIA

Selection decisions may be based upon the following criteria

1. Literary and artistic worth
2. Suitability of content and vocabulary to the age of the readers
3. Contribution of the material to the balance of the total collection
4. Emphasis on positive attitudes
5. Provision of enjoyment thereby fostering an interest in reading
6. Positive reviews in recognized reviewing journals or inclusion in authorities lists of best books for children.

The children's collection includes print and non-print materials to meet the general demands of the majority of children as well as books with special qualities, which make them valuable to children with special needs, talents, problems or interests.

School curriculum demands may be considered in selection; however, it is not the intention of the library to replicate or attempt to substitute for the school library.

Books in a series will be judged individually for merit and will be added only as they fill a particular need.

Books on human development and sex are carefully selected as to scientific accuracy and simplicity and dignity of presentation.

Books which are recognized as children's classics and of considerable literary material are included in the collection even though they may contain a word or phrase that is unacceptable to some members of the community.

Current books which are well written and which authentically and meaningfully portray a period, incident, or way of life may be purchased despite the occasional use of an unacceptable term, provided the total impact of the books meets the standards set forth in this policy.

The responsibility for the reading of children rests with their parents or legal guardians. Materials in the adult collection will not be restricted by the possibility that children may obtain materials their parents consider inappropriate.

Materials chosen especially for children will be shelved under the designation J for juvenile books.

It is the intention of the library to stimulate children's interest in reading through programs such as the summer reading program and story hours. The library staff cooperates with area pre-schools, day care centers and the Parks and Recreation Department of the Town of Parker to further the objective of fostering a love of books and reading among children.

REFERENCE POLICY

The library recognizes the provision of reference service to its patrons as one of its chief functions. Because of the vast scope and specialized nature of reference materials the library staff realizes the impossibility of having the best and/or most recent information on every conceivable topic immediately available on the local level. For this reason it will be the goal of the library staff to:

1. Answer the question from available sources or
2. Refer the patron to a more appropriate resource to obtain the desired information or
3. Initiate appropriate interlibrary loan procedures to obtain needed material or
4. Refer the question to the State Library or other appropriate information center for further investigation.

While it is the desire of the library staff to provide patrons with the requested information, there are limits, which must be imposed.

- A. Patrons with legal questions will be directed to the Arizona Revised Statutes or other books on law that the library may have in its collection or web sites. In no instance will a librarian or other staff member attempt to interpret the state laws for a patron. The law materials acquired by the library will generally be those suitable for a layman. Patrons with complicated law-related questions will be referred to a law library or urged to seek legal counsel.
- B. Patrons with medically related questions will be directed to one of the standard medical reference books or to the general layman's medical collection the library holds or web sites. The library staff will not interpret material information for the patrons.
- C. Patrons with questions relating to appraisal of value of an object or piece of property will be directed to any relevant materials the library might hold on the subject, but in no way will the library staff attempt to appraise any such object or offer opinions concerning possible value.
- D. The library's role in handling genealogy or heraldry questions will be that of directing the patron to the appropriate materials in the library's collection. Patrons will be referred to another agency where more materials on this subject are known to exist and where specialized assistance is available. The library will do interlibrary loan for genealogy materials on a limited basis.

Library staff will make efforts to obtain requested telephone numbers to agencies such as governmental organizations, chambers of commerce or associations, but will expect the actual contact by telephone to be made by the patron asking for the information.

Library telephone will not be available for use by the public. Library staff will not as a matter of course make long distance telephone calls to answer patron's requests. Telephone patron requests are welcomed; however, when the library staff determines that the quantity of information requested is sufficient to warrant it, the staff member may ask the patron to come into the library to examine the material held on the subject. The staff will not read long passages from various sources, nor is it their place to synthesize or interpret information for the patron.

Because the library has a limited number of telephone lines, under most circumstances the caller will be asked to give a name and telephone number where he or she can be reached with the answer to the query posed, rather than being asked to hold. This is to insure the opportunity for other patrons to complete calls to the library, rather than being discouraged by a busy signal.

It will be the duty of the library staff member handling reference requests to guide the patron in the use of reference tools and in the location of material on a given topic. It is not the responsibility of library staff to conduct research for patrons or to interpret data.

The library staff wants to assist the patrons in finding exactly the right information needed. For this reason it is often necessary to ask questions of the patron to clarify the problem and determine an appropriate search strategy. This is not done to discourage the patron or to invade the privacy of the person with an inquiry. It is merely intended to provide the best possible answer in the shortest length of time. The staff considers no questions to be too small or insignificant. We want to serve you if we can.

WEEDING POLICY

In accordance with space and efficiency requirements of the facility and recognized standards for weeding library materials, the following guidelines will be used for permanent removal of volumes from the library's cataloged collection:

1. Non-repairable damage to the book
2. The book is outdated or it has not circulated in over two years, excluding works that are recognized as classics
3. There are more copies of the book than demand warrants

DVD / VIDEO POLICY

It is anticipated that the DVD/videocassette collection will contain instructional, educational, children's and family entertainment, popular and classic film titles in DVD/Video format.

SELECTION AND ACQUISITION

Selection of titles shall be guided by the same considerations and principles as the selection of printed material. The same staff who currently handles acquisitions will perform selection and ordering.

Some of the key criteria for selection include: communicates information effectively, is of good technical quality, has subject matter that is best served by the use of video as opposed to other media; is addressed to the individual user rather than dependent upon the use of an instructor to convey its information; and generally stands alone as an information source.

The DVD/video collection will center around, but not be limited to, how-to-instruction, cultural and ethnic material. Arizona and southwestern subjects, social issues, recognized classics, children's stories, and family entertainment.

CIRCULATION/LOAN POLICY

DVD/Videocassettes will be circulated to library members who are 18 years of age or older. Those under 18 may select one video intended for children's entertainment prior to check out. This is because of the high cost of video materials and so that the parent is aware of the increased risk assumed in checking out video materials.

DVD/Video recordings from the Parker Public Library are not to be copied, sold or rented by their recipients. It is the responsibility of the person borrowing the item to see that they are used in an appropriate manner in accordance with the copyright law. Any group or organization wishing to borrow the item to show to a group or organization is responsible to pay performance fees to the producer and obtain appropriate permission from the producer of the video to give a public showing. Most DVD/Video are for home viewing only.

DVD/Videocassettes are available for checkout for up to two days (this includes the day it is checked out) with the exception of DVD/videos checked out on Friday, a due date of Monday is issued; or if a federally recognized holiday falls within the two-day period. There is a limit of three DVD/videos per cardholder, the exception being videos that are checked out as boxed sets. Some video series contain numerous volumes; these are checked out at a limit of three (3) at a time. Longer running movies are boxed with two individual tapes; although it is one movie, these are checked out as two tapes. Videocassettes are subject to special overdue fines. During business hours videocassettes are to be returned to the circulation desk; after hours they may be returned to the book drop, however late fees will be assessed. Borrowers must rewind all cassettes before returning them, rewind fees apply. Lost or damaged DVD/Video will be assessed at full replacement value. The Library Advisory Board sets all fines and charges. A current schedule of charges and fines are available at the circulation desk.

TELEPHONE USE POLICY

The telephones located in the public library are for library business, receipt of reference questions for the public and for convenience to the patron in gaining information about library programs and services. They are not to be used by patrons for conducting personal business or for social calls. A public pay telephone is located outside the Town Hall building across the parking lot for use of the general public. If at all possible, both children and adults will be expected to use this telephone for any needed calls. (Library staff will determine allowable calls).

Should an emergency situation arise, (the definition of such an emergency to be defined by library staff and not the patrons) the staff may permit a phone call to be made on a telephone at the front desk, with the call dialed by a staff member. A desire to save a toll-charge on a telephone call will not be considered an emergency.

While it is true that taxpayers do fund the services of the Library, as they do all City services, no single taxpayer has the right to expect special treatment or services not afforded to others. Allowing patrons access to the library's telephones would undermine the purposes for acquiring the telephone service. Patrons would soon find that their legitimate attempts to contact the library hindered by those patrons wishing to use the telephones for personal business. It is for that reason that the Library Advisory Board has approved the telephone use policy.

EQUIPMENT USE POLICY

The Parker Public Library allows access to several computers and a typewriter for the convenience of our patrons; however, the staff of the library has priority on all equipment.

As Town of Parker property, all additional equipment will be loaned only to Town Departments, or individuals at the discretion of the Library Staff. (With appropriate deposit)

The policy is designed to protect audio-visual and other equipment so that it will be available for its intended function of enhancing programs to the library patrons and to help staff perform their assigned duties. It is to ensure that the equipment will be used in the manner it was originally intended at its purchase that, the Library Advisory Board is adopting this policy.
